Digital Transformation Expert, VC, PPE

Strategy consultant at BCG (1 year), Consulting Scholar at Deloitte (4 years) and previous EdTech founder.

At 18, I joined Deloitte across their Human Capital and Strategy divisions, working on cultural transformations for FTSE 250 clients.

I continued this work alongside a Philosophy, Politics & Economics degree at the University of Warwick, ending my scholarship as the first fresh graduate to be offered a full-time role at Deloitte's venture builder. During this time, I also raised seed funding to build a political debating platform with some good friends.

Following this, I joined BCG as a strategy consultant in the Middle East, working primarily on Qatar's National Development Strategy.

Outside of professional life, I am most passionate about building great teams and exploring new educational models which optimise for genius over excellence.
